PWS1711-STN HITECH HMI Used I have a Hitech PWS 1711 STN HMI.I successfully downloaded the program to my PC.It created 2 files .AP1 and .AP2.Now I cannot open them.How can I . Windows 7 Hiper-V HMI In Windows 7 Hiper-V HMI. I have installed the drivers, but the screen only shows gray. How can I fix it ... Windows 7/Ubuntu HMI I had Ubuntu HMI on my laptop. I tried to upgrade to Windows 7, but got a message: . HMI how to access devices via USB ports HMI how to access USB devices via USB ports HMI for USB devices HMI controller USB port is connected to Windows 7 and now my HMI device is not connected correctly. I cannot use Device Manager to connect to it. I can't even access the device from the host using Device Manager. I also can't use Device Manager to access USB devices from the HMI via the usb ports. The only thing I can do is access the device through the device using Device Manager, and that works fine. I also access the devices through the USB ports using Device Manager, and they are found and work fine. The problem, however, occurs when I try to use Device Manager to find devices that are connected to a computer that I don't want to access. I've seen this thread that says you can use a USB keyboard to access a USB port, but that doesn't make sense to me because the USB keyboard is not enabled in Device Manager and I don't want it enabled. So how can I make Device Manager to accept USB devices? Thank you!!! So far, I found this on Google <http://www.example.com/device/usb/> It should help me, but I don't understand how it does it. I found this page on my blog that says you can do it this way http://www.example.com/device/usb/device_manager.htm#device/harddisk/serial But I just don't understand it. I want to know if there is something in Device Manager that can accept some USB devices. I wanted something like this program that accepts USB devices, but it's not that complicated. I just need it to trigger the device when I click on it. I've seen it here on Stack Overflow, for example: <http://www.symfony.com/doc/current/cookbook/security/migration-to-sdk-doc/how-to-try-and-> I've also seen it here on Stack Overflow, for example: but that's not what I want. I want something much simpler than this. There are some ideas. It depends on what you mean by "takes"? To me it means: "there's no way he's actually on the line unless he's very smart at the time." If he's so smart that he can disguise himself in such a way that you wouldn't even know he was there, he'd probably be safe. If he is, then he probably won't be sitting in a corner. But that doesn't mean he can afford to stay indoors. Rather, he will probably be in a place where he can easily escape when needed.
